EYES OF EAST
ON CALIFORNIA
ORE DEPOSITS

If You Own Any, You'll Be Able to Sell It Soon

SAN FRANCISCO.—Do you own or control one or more of the state's valuable mineral deposits? If you are included in this fortunate (?) class, an opportunity may soon be presented to shift title to a new owner.

According to the official records of Lloyd L. Root, state mineralogist, the wise and wealthy men of the east have directed their attention to California and are preparing to journey west for the purpose of acquiring possession of the hidden wealth of this vast empire on the shores of the Pacific.

During the past year a total of seven thousand inquiries have poured into the office of the California state mining bureau, a fair proportion consisting of detailed requests for information from easterners who are preparing to extend their activities here.

The financiers, while interested in the production of petroleum, are more especially attracted to the mineral substances used in structural materials, industrials, salines, and fuels.

"Tremendous interest has been developed in the production of cement," said Root. "The demand for this product is growing by leaps and bounds on account of the increase in construction. Any person possessing clay deposits will find ready purchasers in the near future. Brick and tile are growing in demand yearly, as are miscellaneous stones."

"Recently we have had numerous requests for information regarding iron deposits. Our annual production at present is but 4000 tons, but our ore deposits are so vast that there is practically no limit to the possible production, provided the experiments now being conducted for the manufacture of pigs come up to expectation."

"Simultaneously with the request for iron ore information are scores for coal data. Fortunately for the state's potential iron industry, the deposits of bituminous and sub-bituminous coal are so vast that both raw ingredients needed to turn out tremendous quantities of this important metal are ready at hand."

"It is quite probable that California will witness a revival of coal mining on a far greater scale than was in evidence in 1880, when the peak of production reached 269,000 tons. Interest has been manifested in the fields in Shasta county, but more attention has been directed to the large proven coal area of Monterey county, where many millions of tons have been developed and are ready to be mined."
